

Table of contents

Chapter 1 Introduction	9
1.1 Sinicisation is not always sinicisation	12
1.2 The problematic state of research on contemporary Christianity in the People's Republic of China	14
1.2.1 The Chinese model propagating harmony	15
1.2.2 The American model of highlighting conflict	16
1.3 The approach used in this publication	19
1.4 Field research	22
Chapter 2 The historical context of Christian missions in China before the creation of the People's Republic of China	25
2.1 Jingjiao : "Nestorian Christianity"	25
2.2 Franciscan missions of the 13 th century	28
2.3 The Jesuits in China: the first permanent Christian mission	29
2.3.1 The Chinese rites controversy	34
2.4 Christianity under the late Qing dynasty	36
2.4.1 The Opium Wars	38
2.4.2 Anti-Christian moods	40
2.4.3 The influence of Christianity on the Hundred Days' Reform	41
2.5 Christianity in the era of the republic (1912–1949)	42
Chapter 3 The Catholic Church and the rise of the communist regime in China	45
3.1 The situation after the creation of the People's Republic of China: forced isolation from Western influence	47
3.2 Martyrs of political campaigns	53
3.3 Reform and the opening of Chinese society	58
Chapter 4 A question of authority: Sino-Vatican tension	61
4.1 Pius XII, the anti-communist pope	63
4.2 The period of silence: Pope John XXIII and Pope Paul VI	67
4.3 The gradual renewal of Sino-Vatican dialogue under Pope John Paul II	68
4.4 Pope Benedict XVI and hopes for breaking the ice	71
4.5 Pope Francis and the thaw in Sino-Vatican relations	72
4.6 Pope Leo XIV and the future of Chinese Catholics	83

Chapter 5 Religious policy and its influence on the Catholic Church	85
5.1 The Chinese legal system	86
5.2 A historical overview of political declarations on the regulation of religious life in the PRC	87
5.2.1 Document No. 19	88
5.2.2 Document No. 6	90
5.2.3 Documents No. 144 and No. 145	91
5.2.4 Political documents on the administration of the Catholic Church in China	92
5.3 Current legislative documents concerning the realm of religion	92
5.3.1 The Constitution	92
5.3.2 The Regulations on Religious Affairs	93
5.3.3 Amending of the Regulations on Religious Affairs as a turning point	96
5.3.4 Further measures for the administration of religious life in China	97
5.4 Consequences of changes to religious policy	100
5.4.1 Political sinicisation of religion and Chinese Catholics	102
5.4.2 Greater control by local officials	105
5.4.3 Supervision of religious clergy	107
5.4.4 Religious education under the grip of the Communist Party	107
5.4.5 Limitations on the dissemination of religious information	109
5.4.6. Controls on the funding of religious groups	112
 Chapter 6 A harmonious relationship or an attempt to survive?	 115
 Chapter 7 Conclusion	 127
 Summary	 135
 References	 1377
Primary sources	137
On-line primary sources	137
Secondary literature	139
On-line secondary sources	147
 Index	 151